Professor George Harinck (VU Amsterdam)

Dr Henk van den Belt (Utrecht)

Dr Dirk van Keulen (Kampen)

Dr Paul Nimmo (New College)

Dr Carys Moseley (New College)

Dr Mark Elliot (St Andrews)

Professor Donald Macleod (Free Church College)

New College and the Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam invite you to a two-day symposium on the Dutch Neo-Calvinist theologian Herman Bavinck (1854-1921). Following the pattern of Bavinck's work, the conference will first explore issues related to Bavinck's theology before examining wider cultural and ethical applications of this doctrine.

The conference organisers welcome proposals for short papers from postgraduate students. For further information on the conference schedule, accommodation and booking, see <http://www.ed.ac.uk/schools-departments/divinity/news-events/events/bavinck2010>. Contact: James Eglinton (j.p.eglington@sms.ed.ac.uk)

Dogmatics is the system of the knowledge of God; ethics is that of service of God. The two disciplines, far from facing each other as two independent entities, together form a single system; they are related members of a single organism.

- Herman Bavinck
